

The risk of a few media giants controlling the information needed for a functioning democracy is too great to allow change in the current ownership rules.